

The Higher Self, The One and Planet X

12 June 2019

A reader was "...a bit surprised by [the] recent strong comments about the so-called 'Higher Self' " kindly asking The Committee 3 questions:

Q1: We are multidimensional beings. It is commonly spoken that our being has a low aspect called ego and a very high aspect, outside of the consciousness, variously referred to as Higher Self, High Self, Subconscious, Source, Soul fragment, and so on. This high aspect can be reached, for example, in a deep hypnotic state. It has often been questioned as to what might be the most appropriate descriptive word to use for this aspect of a human being, especially if Higher Self is deemed incorrect?

C: The proper word does not exist. In which human language? What meanings do the words have in the respective language vocabulary databases? Does every person using the word intend to give it the same meaning? Does every person hearing the word apply the same interpretation? Does a word's meaning - either intended or interpreted - change when used in a different sentence or different context? What happens with human languages not using words, but characters or symbols?

Because of the answers to such questions, reasons exist which justify development of telepathic communication; what we say is: physical words are a temporary, not natural development. It is more accurate and far less subject to misunderstanding through mismeaning or misunderstandings, to communicate telepathically. We know the some of you will recognize our coinage of a word, and we did this intentionally, mistaken as it might be seen. Misunderstanding is two sided; mismeaning, or misintending are as often involved, if not named.

There is no higher aspect to be reached; all aspects of a human's soul are present and available at all moments. No reaching or efforts, no stretching, no stressing and no exertion are needed; simply an acceptance of the existence of a complete soul, opens the temporarily unavailable aspects to unfettered access.

Hypnosis is a good technique however it is not a specific requirement, although it is good. What can be known or discovered under hypnosis can also be known without the process, subject to the limits any one soul has pre-installed into her or his life plan and contract.

Higher self is not so much incorrect as misleading; if there is something higher, then away from highness must be lowness. Humans are given to addressing royalty as "Your Highness" and this means there are other humans who represent lowness. High is a completely and utterly relative term. In your true home, where there is no gravity, hard surfaces and concepts of heights and depths, of rising or falling, the notions of highness or lowness, do not exist.

Humans have created these perceptions because of the surface environment of Earth which includes the physical limits of a body, but humans have extrapolated these views into realms where such perceptions do not apply.

No human has a lower self, thus cannot have a higher self. If a human has a left side, then the same person must have a right one. A front requires the existence of a back; a bottom means there is a top. How does a human's left side reach its right?

Reverse the top and bottom of anything; what changes? A reversal of the effects of gravity upon physical matter achieve it. Removal of physical matter likewise removes the effects; the notions of lower and higher, cease to exist.

Q2. We are said to be One. And that we are all that we are ever going to be. That our real task is to reduce and eliminate the energy blockages which prevent us from bringing the higher aspects, levels or dimensions of our being into our consciousness. That is, we should aspire to increase the level of our consciousness in this manner. Is this description correct?

C: The human task and not energy blockages but perceptions. Think not in physical body but mental terms. Physicality will always obey and follow.

Q3. There has been lately much widespread information in the social media about an imminent Event, called "Three days of darkness" and by other names. Reportedly a higher than third dimension Planet X alias Nibiru will approach the Earth. This planet is said to actually be an Annunaki spacecraft, which will symbolically or even otherwise darken the Earth for three days and pull the Earth's magnetic axis, resulting in a pole shift and climate change. There are said to come about other very significant developments as well, on physical, emotional, mental and spiritual levels. It is reportedly said by the Annunaki crew that they are here to correct their agenda, do good to the mankind this time. Is this Event known to the Committee and to what extent does this description ring true? Is there more about this Event that the Committee can add?

C: How exciting, thrilling and entertaining. Untrue all of it, just the same.

Geophysical events are not going to occur as described; the solar system will approach and pass a planet, not the other way around. The majority of effects will be upon the passed "rogue" or independent, unattached planet, which is not orbiting a star. There will be fluctuation effects upon Earth and the planet will become briefly visible before disappearing again. It has a very weak magnetosphere but its gravity exists, and as these two forces are essentially the same force, it will cause a portion of effects upon planets in your solar system, but far less than are caused to it.

This planet moves in a different direction and slower velocity than your solar system and planets. This will seem to accelerate the perceived speed of the planet but the bulk of the speed will be Earth and solar system movement. As the planet is approached then passed, the effects of its presence will be noted. There will be no disasters, calamities or upheavals which result from the presence, but electromagnetic fluctuations will become entertaining.

[Sidebar: Our solar system moves at about 11.5 million miles per day. The distance between the sun and Earth is 93 million, thus the distance from the sun to Earth would be crossed in almost exactly 8 days by an object moving at the overall speed of the sun and the entire solar system.

Another object moving at half such speed in a very different direction with little magnetosphere would be attracted by our sun's gravity, cross a distance the equivalent of the diameter of Earth's orbit in possibly just a week, get tossed around by the sun as it is passed, then gets pushed away.]

The remainder of what is described in the question, is speculation. Alien extraterrestrials are not coming to interfere in human societies. There are no alien extraterrestrial spacecraft the size of planets or even planetary satellites.

The temporary visitor planet is not moving along the same or even a similar plane to that which your solar system's planets follow. It will pierce the plane from either below or above, becoming visible as it comes close enough to reflect your sun's light. It will pass through to never be seen again. The size will make it too large to be affected by any one planet's gravity, the angle of approach and velocity differential will prevent the possibility it could be drawn into orbit. To the contrary, it will be pushed somewhat then slowed, as your solar system approaches before being passed over.

We will not suggest when or closest to which of your solar system's planets it will pass; the party will have to be a surprise, both when and regarding the outcome or ending. This will enhance excitement.

Be well one and all. Have fun with this event, those of you still alive and living on Earth when it eventually comes to occur.
