

Transgenderism

27 February 2018

A reader asks, paragraphs numbered by Yours Truly to match answers:

1. [The] title & questions ... prompted me to think about individuals who (today) are seriously contemplating (aka Meditating upon) living their life in a way that is different from the gender assigned to them on their birth certificate.
2. In the past, I've often thought that as we are progressing through this SHIFT, we need catalysts (Enzymes), examples to help give us the opportunity (& the ability) to learn to accept ourselves & those around us who are different.
3. I've also thought that the process of accepting individuals of different races, creeds, sexual preferences & more recently a (seemingly) increase in Transgender individuals.
4. So, my question for TC is, does my Meditative musing about the purpose of a perceived increase in Transgendered individuals, hold any accuracy, as we collectively move into a period of Transformational Meditation, to perhaps help us deal with the look & feel of our Alien cousins, when they present themselves.

I ask, because, there doesn't seem to be a "Handbook" for that particular subject yet.

Good subject, never suggested for Q&A before. The Committee speaks:

1. Gender is chosen by each and all of you before incarnation. The document of Earth to which you refer, records the evidence of the choice. That is all. No human is born with an assigned gender s/he does not choose.
2. The ability is innate and inherent to all of you, and then you teach it out of children. This effort is not very successful, because in spite of the prevalence, most humans already do accept differences in others, and are generally indifferent to this subject. That receives almost no attention or acknowledgement. What is emphasized is the small group of resistors. This minority portion of the human population receives all of the attention. It is easy to believe most of you reject, condemn and generally dislike transgender people. The reality among mankind is, most people pay little attention and but for brief intervals until the attention seekers fall quiet again. Expect not unanimous perfection, it cannot and should not be achieved.
3. The acceptance has always existed, what has changed is the desire to call attention to non-acceptance. This effort, to increase acceptance, will be most beneficial when a target for acceptance rates is established along with an impartial, accurate way to measure acceptance. Of course, as you have read the last sentence, you know this cannot be accomplished. Then the callers of attention to the subject should define how and what they deem success, in the way best expressed by them. THIS statement will be most successful in achieving the widest possible acceptance sought.
4. Meditation is not related. The look and feel of mankind's alien cousins to humans, will be humanity's choice.