

319 – About That Time 23122020

Good morning Matthew, this is Brahmani your chief guide

It has been a ghastly year we know, for you and for many others around the world. Unfortunately this situation is only set to worsen. This will come as no surprise to you or your readers, but we are moving towards that time when the most intense period of change is about to start

The key message to try to convey in this short piece, is that there is nothing to fear from this intense period of activity, although it will be dramatic and it will be nothing that mankind has seen in living memory, indeed activity on this level has not been seen for thousands of years

The reasons for this are contained in other pieces that you have published Matthew. But essentially as you know this is an intense period of change that is necessary in order to allow mankind to progress; mankind has stagnated and now needs to move forward

He needs to move to a position where he is no longer competing; he needs to learn how to co-operate. This is a big step; it will not happen overnight. The key message to convey to people is that when this convulsive activity commences, which will be really very soon now, it is simply a transition

Many will say to you how can this be because the very fabric of our lives, the way we live our lives, everything is being destroyed. And the answer to this will be yes this is a necessary step in order to re-focus the way that mankind is living, and to allow him to take stock of the situation. It is important to strip away a lot of what is unnecessary about modern life

So, when the activity commences, it will start with some very violent seismic and volcanic events. Of course it will initially cause the oil shock – the energy shortage – but everything else, all the knock-on effects from this, are contained in other documents that you're already published

We just want to stress to your readers that whilst this will look to be a series of catastrophic events which signal the end of life on Earth, this is absolutely not the case

The media will jump on it; politicians will jump on it; there will be all sorts of nonsense talked by many so-called experts. We would say perhaps listen to this information; then the majority of it simply discard

We will talk again soon
