

Change MayDay

01 May 2023

Mayday, mayday . . . workers of the world unite!

In today's episode The Committee continues.

"In the absence of time, old and new do not matter the way calendar thinking suggests. Because 'old' means deterioration as much as time's passage, humans are easily attracted to new. York, Delhi, Zealand, Orleans, Granada and Mexico are but six among many human examples.

The emergency of today, the reason to shout 'mayday', is the emergency of every day on Earth, because no days exist; humans are always in the light, just not all of you simultaneously. The bright and dark halves of yin and yang represent absence of emergency one interpretation of this day incorrectly suggests.

Evolution is always; change is control. For unity to come, leadership must first form. Can service to unity prevail over self, even as such humans have been widely deemed foolish for such approach?

You all row your own boat yet also form a massive ship of life not easily seen from each skiff, canoe or individual raft. Let us rise far above the oceans to observe the land vessel you navigate across Earth. That humans do not dwell upon the vast water surfaces of your planet does not mean you do not or cannot flow as do the oceans.

It has now become too easy to take for granted the essentials of human contentment, allowing pursuit of distractions which ignore the origins and substance of essentials, such mental deviations carried forth in the name of progress.

Cooperation, acceptance and unity are now pursued by the loudest proponents, using methods and techniques working immediately and directly against the human togetherness the supports insist be had.

Who are you to insist upon what others might have? Who are they to you?

Togetherness has never meant adaptation to others' preferences. The more disagreement is encountered, the more content one becomes.

Efforts to throttle expression ignore the mind and its resistance to suppression. The best that can be achieved is confusion; what any one of you truly believes is always on the top surface of your mind. In your home of Heaven, it is open to be read by anyone; you can likewise read the headlines and sublines of all other minds.

On Earth, a great attraction is the struggle to achieve openness natural to your existence. That humans were once compelled on this day to unite against a fictitious label affixed to what did and does not exist, represented a most recent example. Struggle not and never against what you cannot control; another person's thought. Seek only and always to know your own. This will benefit you and everyone in contact by any means with you, in the most swift and helpful ways.

Examples set the tone, the course and the destination. Orders and commands, often disguised as instructions, directions and recommendations, erode them.

The few among you we have named the hidden controlling powers, have found an open cave not recognized by the many visitors who enter and depart, from which to operate in the manner now causing the difficulties humans could never attribute to them.

Eager interest would erupt in volcanic explosion-like fashion if the people and the passes all taken, were revealed to mankind in general. This exposure would solve nothing but increase troubles eager prosecutors of justice and fairness seek to address. What receives attention propagates; what is ignored withers.

To control your work, mislabeling it 'change', then teaching you to complain about fruits it bears, are symptoms of the greater malaise lurking below the visible surface. To compel to unite against that which should join you instead, just as you simultaneously join it, serves solely and exclusively the compeller, not the audience.

Humans perceive what beliefs form in the human mind come through eyes and ears in almost all ways. Your fingers and nose indicate physical limits but your mind has no such boundaries. Turn your ears and eyes in any direction and for any distance you wish. Only your imagination exists to limit your view, and to this we can say with absolute certainty, your mind has no imagination constraints. You all have infinite ability to create or view using your imagination.

Instead of learning another language to enjoy its offerings, the preference today is a machine to convert unrecognized words & symbols into a language one knows. Convenient as this process might seem, it dilutes and distorts.

Is a vacation trip to another continent the same as a watched video of the same places? Yet this process now repeats endlessly across humanity, using recent technology, the effects not investigated.

If you do not actively pursue it, don't supply it with your thoughts. Who is required to observe the tree? Turn away if you prefer. Who is required to observe the candidate for office? If enough potential onlookers looked away, both candidate and political post pursued would fade then disappear.

Evolve and develop what you are and have within your reach as the priority of every moment. Pursue what excites, energizes and exalts you as your personal priority. If what you can grasp is within your reach, extend yourself towards it to the best of your ability. Small steps are good if you like and what you prefer or if you cannot yet take large ones. The first steps towards the grasping of excitement are the solid foundation of rewards awaiting. All of you naturally know what the limit can be, so this aspect of your extension aimed at excitement will automatically operate to both protect and enhance you.

The meanings of this calendar day offer a positiveness work and labor struggles cannot. Is work but an activity for money?

Be well one and all."
