

CROWN TRUMP

3rd October 2020

Let's start with a few general news current event type questions, and go from there. Crown as in the English noun for "corona" a king's headgear or a virus, but also as the verb; interpret as preferred.

Q: Esteemed Committee, is President Trump going to become seriously ill from the crown virus infection?

C: No.

Q: He is still going to be re-elected?

C: Yes.

Q: Speculation says former VP Joe Biden debated Trump wearing a communications device, to cheat. If that isn't illegal, I'd be surprised and even if not, this is essentially a criminality question, so y'all ain't gonna tell us.

C: This is correct. This matter each of you should give your attention as you prefer. We will say only this; who would be surprised and possibly unhappy if the president of the USA also wore a concealed device for communication, and if discovered the explanation would be safety?

Q: The challenger is just Biden his time, but does he know this?

C: Of course. The majority of party leadership prepared for attempts to remove Trump during the campaign four years ago, the former vice president well aware of the process. The election results once known, the same group knew re-election was almost certain. Removal by administrative means, not elective, was attempted.

Q: Are general US governor reactions to Trump's becoming infected going to think even his top protection levels are not effective, or the opposite? Will we see a re-doubled effort to clamp down harder?

C: The latter, which cannot be done. The flattening of the contagion curve, lengthens it.

Q: Is a calm phase or calmer period of the shift now commencing now?

C: No.

Q: How soon before we see the first crude oil sharp, steep price increases?

C: In human Earth year 2021.

Q: Is the State of California really going to ban the sale of petrol, i.e., gasoline fueled vehicles in year 2035?

C: This idea will be a long moot point in a decade and one half.

Q: Is Trump going to appear at the next or at least another debate against his current rival?

C: Yes.

Q: Will Trump's campaign allow a microphone switch for the moderator?

C: No.

Q: Is Biden's campaign happy or worried about debate microphone switches?

C: No, for it would be rarely used to muzzle Biden.

Q: Well moot point, given that one won't be used.

C: Correct, audience size is too large thus lucrative for all potential moderator hosts to insist; one at least will defect quickly and agree to no moderator microphone control.

Q: Okay, enough USA-centric questions. Let's have the reader ask about current events elsewhere.

C: Their questions we await.
