23 July 2021

Skimming the news just to get a quick view, or reading into it with some depth, has for me always been joined by The Committee's commentary & analysis, but only inside one certain cranium in close proximity and somewhat under my control, which I've been told is occupied by a common cerebral organ and associated tissue.

I did not know such process was not typical, assuming for long stretches—at least 350 to more than 400 moons—that most people did not have the same thing going on. Sharing bits & bytes of that feedback has sometimes drawn interesting attention and vigorous rebuttal. Let's go there again!

Q: The epidemic, pandemic corona virus issue seems to be the press story of the century, at least in the USA. For example, the televised fights between two doctors, one an agency administrator and the other an eye surgeon US Senator, seem to be pre-arranged political theater. Is this press attention part of a bigger plan?

C: The question's existence is evidence of it; we answer yes, of course.

Q: On the surface it's easy to see how the news bidness (Texas slang there folks) wants ratings for revenue and gives attention to the biggest bang, but it seems as if the dead horse has been kicked so many times it has become ground meat. Am I far off base on this?

C: Yes, you are.

Q: Why? How?

C: You mentioned political theater, and this perceived drama extends the issue, draws in more attention and expands or enhances the subject. The issue is not ground meat at all, ready for cooking, consumption and digestion; it is a reason of existence, for political operatives and many citizens.

This event was and is a planned human event, and the principal players are fulfilling a role. The actors are doing what is always done, offering the greater population nearly unequalled opportunity to play along or turn away.

Q: How are we doing, the human race, with this self-manufactured crisis?

C: Spectacularly well. All humans aware of this topic, which is nearly the entire human population, is deriving great benefits from observing other people's reactions and responses, also their own.

Q: How many of the deceased from coronavirus symptoms, chose this as their life plan final exit?

C: More than ninety eight percent.

Q: Okay, next current event; The Americas Cup, the former South American football championship (the world's oldest tournament) was played in Brazil to empty stadiums. Despite widespread evidence that viral transmission risk of any variety outdoors is extremely low to near zero, fear overcame this. What was the significance of the absent crowds?

C: You will note neither field players nor game officials were masked, yet some sideline colleagues in close proximity were, however no cases have been reported. This fact is ignored in the coverage, and fans still remain far from stadiums.

The significance is the preferred view of fear versus facts, and ongoing compliance with ineffective orders, instructions and commands.

Q: US billionaire Bezos took an eleven minute flight over Texas close to or at the top of Earth's atmosphere (106,000m) and back. The vessel used had a certain phallus-like look, which I thought was very clever. Talk of space tourism has followed; could our visitor cousins from other planets do this for & with us, without harm to mankind's history?

C: Of course. The difference is, no occupant would feel accelerative effects on the way up or down and this altitude could be reached in twenty to forty seconds. The descent would be at the same rate, but doing so would deny human occupants the enjoyment of watching the Earth's surface fall away or the approach would become terrifying, so it is done more slowly.

Q: Why more slowly?

C: To increase human enjoyment; a very select few humans have and do travel in visitor spacecraft.

Q: The political opposition in the USA is more convinced than ever, that the installed president is in mental decline. The dominating party in power seems to prefer avoiding the subject. Are we ever going to see the 46th occupant of the White House take a mental capacity exam as did the 45th ?

C: No.

Q: Lots of talk is heard that adversaries outside the USA are trying to gain advantage. Will they succeed?

C: Not much and only within the areas where the currently dominating political party sees advantage for their interests and ultimately for themselves personally. Adversaries outside the USA know well that the current president is one in name and title only, so they are concerned that moves made under the assumption that will to respond is lacking, are naïve. They know a large nation has many layers of military, law enforcement and intelligence functions who will respond to or proactively curb aggression, often swiftly.

Q: Why would supporters of President Biden take offense at comments he is not in complete possession of his mental faculties?

C: They dislike Donald Trump to a strong degree.

Q: A reader asks about the cause or intention of extremely heavy rains with flooding pouring down on several places/continents of our planet; were these man-made, such as drones heating clouds, other devices or not? Were the recent fires in the US and elsewhere also man made - electrowave weapons or similar?

C: The extreme rainfalls where damaging and deadly floods occurred were not man-made, although humans have learned to cause rain where sufficient atmospheric moisture, called clouds, are present. The weather extremes occurring across Earth are The Shift. If we could display for scientists the solar effects upon Earth, its magnetic fields and surface, under the seafloor temperatures, the weather events would come into better focus. Fires in the USA are a regular, natural occurrence and sometimes caused by human negligence.

Q: The rumblings of European Union breakups have calmed down it seems. Has this issue faded?

C: It has been displaced intentionally, by the virus pandemic, as was the intention and purpose among others.

Q: Is this why the virus was released in Europe before the USA?

C: Yes, because this would help with the distraction, first of all, and would help blame China. The virus would have spread more slowly from the USA to Europe had the reverse been done, because Europeans would be much quicker to block Americans from going to European Union nations, than the reverse.

Q: What method, technique or procedure will be used to distract Europeans from debt problems, economic troubles and the break-up of the union, after the pandemic lemon has been squeezed dry of all remaining juice?

C: We would prefer not to ruin the surprise, because it will be more enjoyable and beneficial for the readers of this website to discover these things as they unfold, portrayed as something quite different. Nevertheless, we believe it now beneficial to uncloak this strategy so that as you observe the first steps of distractions, you will know what is really behind them, because they will be intended to look like something else.

Russia will be heavily involved, it depends heavily in economic terms, on energy—specifically hydrocarbons— sold to Europe. More independent economic negotiations which arise from independent nations no longer connected to the EU, will represent more work, more inefficiency and price risk for Russia, who finds it currently much easier to know a powerful European Union exists to make their oil & gas life more profitable.

Watch for issues arising with Russia, Ukraine already at the front of this. The events will not look at all as if they are intended to distract Europeans from EU independence matters, in several cases quite the opposite. Now you all know, this is the reason and purpose for them.

Q: The Olympic Games are kicking off in Tokyo. Will they be lackluster to a degree compared to pre-pandemic events, and if so, because of them?

C: Double yes.

Q: Which country and company or organization within will be the next cyber attack victim?

C: This is like asking for the identity of the perpetrator, but flipping over the coin. This information might distort human history.

Q: Nobody here is the CIO (Chief Information Officer, a job title now common American business hierarchies) of any organization; why can't we know?

C: The principle we must respect and follow, without regard to size, effect or influence. Seedlings precede towering giant trees. We can identify neither and also remain faithful to our commitment. We do not reveal identities of criminal perpetrators, targets or victims. Only in some cases shall we describe the issue once already known, the participants already revealed.

Q: Setting aside current events for a moment, how do our visitor cousins stop the nastier, not-nice visitors from intruding or harming Earth, mankind or anything like that?

C: In a nutshell, power. Sheer, raw firepower and strength.

Q: How did our ET cousins develop such fighting ability?

C: By using the immense, unlimited power of love.

Q: A great topic to explore elsewhere, but let's stick here to current events. US companies are complaining of labor shortfalls, many observers, opinionators & analysts say unemployment benefits are the reason. Is this true and what is the solution?

C: The solution is to leave employers and employees alone, but this is too difficult a proposition for politicians. Allow a tiger, lion, cheetah or bobcat to go three days without eating, then place several kilos of raw meat before such animal. The lure the use of government power represents is irresistible to a government official who holds such power. The desire to interfere with employment, salaries and workers is too great a political opportunity; we refer to Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels. They knew what would happen once a public policy official took a whiff of their economic philosophy, and communism followed naturally.

Q: How long would mankind require to detach governments from economic matters, then restore financial stability?

C: Depending on the level of detachment, it could be quick or slow.

Q: OK, how fast is possible, if complete disengagement of governments from all economic activity were abruptly done?

C: In any one nation, about a month. Across Planet Earth among humans, two months at the most.

Q: What would make the difference between say 1½ and 2 months?

C: Weather.

Q: Almost nobody would believe this is possible.

C: Avoidance of a problem brings no reward and often little acknowledgement that trouble was ever avoided. Humans do not see what does not happen.

Q: And so nobody will leap from the ledge of the tall building to escape pursuers, as was famously shown in the film The Matrix because they are convinced the illusion is concrete reality?

C: Essentially, yes. Almost nobody trusts forty five to sixty days as sufficient time to enact fundamental economic change and improvement.

Q: Okay, one last current events question; should anyone who has not yet been vaccinated still consider getting it?

C: Only if you have a significant possibly contributing medical condition such as cardiological, pulmonary, oncological, immunological or diabetic, possibly others. Notice we said significant. Elderly people should also strongly consider it, however any person in these groups, should know that it is almost a certainty they have been exposed to the virus already and either developed some immunity or were already quite resistant. Highly resistant already would result from good diet, good health and previous viral infections of certain types.

Consider your personal interactions and durations of encounters of physical proximity over the past year, and of your co-workers, family with whom you live and anyone else you see regularly. Unless you have lived a truly isolated existence, the virus has reached you. What serious symptoms did you develop? What is your diet like now? What regular consumption of vitamins do you have and do you receive sufficient outdoor exposure?

Q: Thank you Esteemed Committee. One last quick question; is the new coronavirus, Covid19, here to stay?

C: No, it will mutate itself out of circulation, and the original coronavirus which causes colds, will be the remaining, permanent virus among humans. This diminution is already occurring rapidly and will gain momentum quickly. It has but for press reluctance to report it, coupled with fear of contradicting authorities.
