

Godly HCPs

15 June 2024

Definitions for HCP and Godly are a good start for this post:

HCP: hidden controlling powers, a term I invented, attempts to name an intentionally nameless group of humans who have worked their way into positions of ultimate influence, power and control over human societies and governments.

A group identified usually needs a name however remaining faceless, nameless and behind-the-scenes insulates it from becoming a target. Anonymity allows the group to focus on objectives, allowing it to avoid dilution of its efforts & energy into self-defense and protection.

God: Great reader questions lead the meaning of this word, widely “understood” and disputed, denied and discounted also; more to follow below.

Reader question: Do those on the dark side come with a life plan that actually intended for them to choose for good?

The Committee responds, saying: “The question should be longer; fill in these blanks.

Do those _____ on the dark side [of] _____ come with a life plan that actually intended for them [or] _____ to choose for good _____(s) ?

The reader then clarifies and expands: Another stab at the question. Do those individuals who end up being part of the HCP come in with a life plan that had that intention?

C: “The short answer is ‘yes’ but no soul is fixed into a life plan against your soul’s will, because all souls —humans always included in this process one hundred percent because you are a soul also— can alter their place in existence as preferred. Human body activity free will is a subset, with voluntarily assumed restrictions, which among many things the voluntarily assumed limits are designed and intended to create, provide the illusion that roles and events are fixed. They can be if the souls involved choose fixation as a trait, a quality and a characteristic. We emphasize the human word choice and its human meaning.

The small, reclusive to-the-point-of-invisible group you have defined here includes only souls who have designed this choice into life. Some candidates change life plans along the way and select a different path, but most follow through and join when seemingly invited. These souls who become the HCPs are providing a great service to humanity and simultaneously a great detriment. Personally for their own purposes the HCPs are learning great lessons, but not to the same high level, high degree and ultimate extents reached by the vast, vast nearly universal majority of incarnated-as-human souls aboard Planet Earth.

As mankind again now reaches a zenith of global integration, the HCPs have played a role in this process.

The personal benefit obtained by its members is to know the effects of abusing power granted voluntarily. This is less dynamic, less beneficial and less valuable than encountering adversity, failure, disappointment and wrongful death as humans see these things but nevertheless abusing power remains an experience of high value and great worth.

As souls many of you observe human societies and the conditions created. From within the vast array of activities underway, each of you can choose your place and position as part of the checklist you assemble. As the boxes of your life plan are ticked off, you will most certainly run across circumstances created by HCPs and common human willingness to follow, submit and comply.

Often have we discussed the HCPs of mankind, so we shall limit our discussion to current symptoms and signals of their goals and objectives, so that you are aware of their presence and intent.

Russia has invaded and seized military control of Ukraine, it remains in a position of military dominance but Ukraine continues to receive weapons, money and other resource support. The conflict has been prolonged because of ongoing Ukrainian ability to resist but not come close to prevalence; Russian military force remains able to go where and when it chooses and carry out whatever activity chosen. At best Ukrainian resistance can slow or annoy Russia. This does not benefit Russia, even if you agree Russia should get none but also prolongs the illusion of hope that Russia could be defeated and withdraw, which does not benefit Ukraine. Who then benefits? Do you see how this distracts uninvolved observers, extending the simplistic and inapplicable view of good versus bad? The situation continues with no currently obvious likelihood of resolution or positive turn for either Ukraine or Russia, now essentially the same entity, unable to be improved by either side both of whom fear effects of abandonment to-date efforts and overall defeat. Who benefits? The hidden influences behind the ongoing supply of resistance are the recipients of gain. We note the recent arrival of Russian warships in Havana less than one hundred miles from the USA's land. Cuban sovereignty aside, the powers-that-be in the USA are always concerned about this; just as Russians are always concerned about the USA's warships coming equally close to Russia. Are intentional distractions now more clear?

We turn to the mass migrations into the USA from and through Mexico and across-the-nation discontent from the USA's population that such migration is both permitted and encouraged. Why is the majority of the citizenry ignored beyond what can be called lip service? To believe that solely known officials operating for long term political gain, specifically to bolster the ranks of eventual supporting voters, is the ultimate true motivation of this activity, ignores the intent of the hidden controlling powers behind this process. They are the beneficiaries.

Thirdly, it has become worldwide news that the former leader of the USA is now a criminal, so say his political adversaries. Back up from the details of the news and consider the greater picture as one; a former national leader should be in prison and removed from personal protection because his campaign spent money in a way someone did not like? Where was the theft and harm and to whom? The perceived benefits of the persecution dressed as prosecution are prevention of the former president's return to office, but as any observer of political process understands, political winds are a pendulum, rhythmical but also shifting direction like winds from many directions; the one side will always eventually return to power, then recede and regain dominance later on. Who benefits from this cycle of power? The HCPs seek control over the political thus governance process and both seek to remove from the running a political figure difficult to control and to bolster their control over political process in general. The message being sent by them to their employees, the known actors who seem to be in control but are not really, is: play the game our way and benefit; oppose us and lose, no matter which flavor, stripe and streak of governance you prefer.

These are but a sample of many things occurring now among humans which represent symbols of HCP behind-the-scenes efforts to control mankind.”

Reader questions, the God definition part of the answer:

I think many would agree, God is love and love is God.

RQ: How did God come to be? How can God or love just appear from nothing?

C: God always is, there is no origin or end. Nothingness is an illusion; this does not and has never existed. You are God, all souls are parts and pieces; your collective existence and connections are God. You are always a part of the plan. The separations between each and all of you as individuals are also your unbreakable connection; separation, or the appearance of it, can only be seen when a connection already exists. You are not separate from something which is not there; what is present for and with all of you is a permanent link, a togetherness which ensures your independence and personal autonomy. If you were to combine any one thing from two or several things seen as separate, the one thing or the other or several also stop existing, the two or several pieces become a new first and sole thing, the contributing parts fade way rapidly.

Human life and bodily senses, functioning inside the dimensional limits in which humans exist, create this illusion but it is absolutely impossible; it cannot be.

RQ: Do I understand correctly that every one of our souls is just God, all the same God?

C: Yes, your understanding is accurate.

RQ: I've always wanted to know the end goal of all the work our souls do? I understand we are incarnating here and other planets for God to experience itself in different ways. Then what?

C: The objective is perspective. The places all souls choose to go and things chosen to be done, offer a view, a look, an experience and understanding not attainable otherwise. Incarnation as a human is but one of many, many choices available. It is a very good one, one of the best and one of the costliest in terms of incarnation challenges. So well done is the illusion of separation humans achieve inside the human house, that not only access but also existence of other rooms in the houses are outright disbelieved. This is a great belief to temporarily have, for it provides an insight into your mind which would be difficult to achieve without the process.

RQ: Do we merge back in with God/source?

C: We are never un-merged. We are always together, always linked and always connected. The ropes, cords, cables and wires are made longer or shorter, are twisted and turned in many ways, but always remain and stay unbreakable.

RQ: Then do we stop having our own individual selves?

C: This is not possible. The existence of God is built upon the matrix of connections all souls create. That parts of God which might and often expand but at other places contract, are but pulsations of existence. The beating heart of an animal represents this natural process, the essential nature of all souls.

RQ: What is the real point of our souls learning in our lifetimes here?

C: Perspective. We suggest a human example; gaze upon a great human bridge spanning a mighty river or canyon; consider what is seen from atop the bridge, what views can be had of the surrounding landscape and scenery, when standing on, walking, riding or driving across the bridge? Consider a motor vehicle, a bicycle, roller skates or a skateboard for vehicular movement. All of these choices offer unique and different experiences, different views and unique points-of-view.

Place yourself on the underside of the bridge, standing upon the bottom as if gravity did not apply to you. The canyon bottom or great river below is now above your head; to see it you must lift your head up and back, to turn your eyes in the direction needed to see what was below but now is above you. Remember you are standing on the bottom as solidly, firmly and as easily as you stood, walked, ran or drove across the “top” or other side.

Shut off the gravity temporarily, but only on that other side; the gravity holding you to the bottom continues to keep you in place, secure, safe and able to move as you choose. If you attempt to return to the top, which for you is now the bottom, you would fall into the sky above and as you might perceive it, you would be lost forever.

The perspectives and beliefs you gain from this are wonderful. This tiny bridge example is but a minuscule sliver of what is gained and shows the point of your life as a human being.

RQ: If our souls are still in heaven with our loved ones while we are also living on earth with blinders on. So, if we are still in our natural home living with our loved ones, acting in this play on earth, it seems rather pointless. Is it so important to experience things in a way on earth that we can't in heaven? Makes it seem like it's just for fun. Like going on an amusement park ride.

C: You are in Heaven now; you are a soul. This reader question, which arises from the human illusion and from inside the parameters of human life, is accurate but cannot be applied to a soul.

The blinders humans wear are beautiful sunglasses which allow certain sights but not others. Your soul is always with all souls, and close to souls you select for closeness and also alongside those souls who choose closeness with you.

If the Earth experience were pointless, you would not be t/here. That the question is even able to be asked, is the point of your presence on Earth as a human being.

Yes, it is of extreme importance that you “...experience things in a way on earth that we can't in Heaven?” to quote the readers words exactly. It is important beyond any ability we have to express this with mere human words, thus we shall not attempt it.

Your view accurate, it is done for fun; fun is the best part of human life and is the reason humans seek fun all the time. Even the most bitter human who might say s/he does not seek, want, enjoy or pursue fun will do it in a minute when the chance for fun as defined by that human's beliefs, presents itself. Fun can be many, many things for many people at many stages of life, but all humans beyond infancy have an idea of what fun is, and often a dozen immediately describable versions of it. Sports, intimacy, concerts, festivals, contests and many examples apply to the many of you; differences arise as to which type or form of these things appeal but the chance for fun, if the appealing activity or several are presented, will always attract and motivate a human. Yes, life is fun; it is supposed to be. Human life truly is just for fun. How many of you can relate to or have experienced what you would describe as serious fun?

Be well one and all, our greetings once again and humble request that you return again.
