

The Prime Directive

20 January 2022

The "prime directive" is a rule our Alien ET friends and cousins respect, obey and enforce. It says no visitor to Earth may interfere in a way which changes human history beyond what we decide voluntarily or is caused by natural forces.

Communication is not blocked by this rule. Humans retain control over our actions and reactions to communication from & with Alien ET visitors. Let's unpack this topic.

Q: Why are we not contacted by visitors more frequently?

C: Humans are contacted for a reason or purpose. The study of coyotes is disturbed by human contact attempts, just as human behavior would be.

Q: Why then was any contact ever made?

C: Contact has been continuous; humans were created by visitors. The relative unawareness for many humans, of extraterrestrial cousins is a human decision. There is no first contact concept, this is not possible.

Q: Why are we mostly observed, and only a very few humans are contacted?

C: Most humans fear contact. Human scientific authority, such as deceased astrophysicist Stephen Hawking, warned humans about contact. Mr. Hawking was deemed an expert on outer space by many humans. Such statements either create or reinforce the notion visitors to Earth are dangerous.

To reverse this idea, requires significant, meaning widespread and continuous, contact. Doing so would become interference and distortion, and quickly.

Your extraterrestrial cousins are not concerned with their public relations image as far as humans are involved, in fact this is not considered by them. Few humans even willing to believe alien extraterrestrials exist, beyond the few humans who know from firsthand personal experience that they do, have concern for mankind's image around the local star cluster, inside Earth's federation or group, or in general.

Q: If so few humans are aware alien extraterrestrials exist, how will enough of us ever come to a point where we can ask for across the board revelation and disclosure?

C: This question speeds past a human decision which answers the question itself. Many humans are aware of the topic but disbelieve. This is largely because human leadership is composed of default liars.

In general, an elected official will tell a lie more easily than the truth. This is not to say the truth is rare, that lies are abundant. Such officials know that lying can be found out, but if a lie will protect the position of the politician, the maker of public policy, and such liar believes it can be kept hidden, deception usually prevails.

Against this backdrop, the human decision to conceal or reveal alien extraterrestrial contact was made. Despite appearances, humans do control government and do control revelation or disclosure by governments of what government people know.

This citizen control applies to many topics, more than a few unrelated to alien extraterrestrials. Human history offers many examples of collective human resistance to and even violent overthrow of central authorities.

In the current age, the factor of information inundation has been added and used to manipulate humans. Censorship occurs as it has since the written word became possible to spread, now extending to written and spoken information, however the greatest tools used to manipulate are emotion, ignorance dissonance.

Information disliked is flooded with countering information. The observer is most likely to become confused by it, and believe neither side. For the opposition, this is good. We suggest consideration of an election. If between two candidates, the difference between winner and loser is five percent or less, this means ninety five percent or more voters cancel out one another. The winner is s/he who tips the five or fewer percent her/his way. To tip public opinion, a counterflood of equivalent opinion is put out. Then a small specific but very carefully aimed bit of information is directed to the emotions of the five or fewer percent, largely ignored by the vast majority.

The risk of revealing extraterrestrial contact was unknown, thus not taken when enough such information was learned by human central authorities. As time passed and more information became available, specific things were concealed as other things were not attempted to be hidden.

Because the core group, with knowledge and much evidence that the general public in many nations would believe, knows most citizens are given to skeptical dismissal, the few who speak out are allowed to. Without the required evidence humans demand, the topic never evolves beyond an interesting discussion.

Your extraterrestrial cousins are content to allow humans to endlessly discuss them, if that is what humans want.

If humans however choose to ask extraterrestrial cousins to appear in a broad, widespread way, they will.

The idea that a government should reveal what it knows, is a way of thinking trained into the population. By asking the visitors themselves to reveal their presence and contact, the visitors would also reveal everything governments know which has been covered up.

If the citizenry asks for this, the citizenry will get it.

Humans enjoy listening to and obeying authority. Some do not, and these resistors are easily neutralized by a similar if not smaller group among the followers who eagerly attack them. The followers see resistance as corrosive to their preferred view of order, and distrust the absence of control. It makes them quite uneasy, so vigorous control efforts are put up in order to restore order by removal of doubt.

Q: Human skepticism requires photos, audio, video and human testimony as to the authenticity, of alien ET encounters. What needs to be done to make this happen?

C: Enough of you ask for the visitor cousins to visit and explain how.

Q: Once the witnesses, audio and video are ready, how would censorship be overcome?

C: Flood the air and internet waves with them. Be ready to compensate witnesses for loss of income and assets, pay legal fees for defense of criminal charges and for the occasional disappearance of certain speakers.

If the notion sticks that substantial extraterrestrial contact and information have been deliberately concealed, it is natural to expect citizens to demand revelation of other concealed pieces of information in other areas.

The HCPs are aware of this risk and have already taken steps to prevent this from happening.

In the USA you will notice how a large protest with a tiny percentage of intruders within, has been labeled an insurrection. You will notice how one political party decided that dislike of the events justified removal proceedings against the USA's president, with no evidence the president recruited, organized, supplied or instructed protestors.

This event is an example of information flood, cognitive dissonance and neutralization. These techniques are used to mold human opinion on many topics, to maintain and enhance government authority.

The citizenry of Planet Earth will have to convince their chosen leaders part of the human created hierarchies, or by popular vote and sentiment, that alien extraterrestrial contact should happen.

Then humans have to listen without fear. Having just a few listen who can then repeat the message to others, is a good way to begin. This website's creator produced a book on the topic. The citizenry is not generally interested in this information because they do not believe the source.

Humans want video on a news show in which they already believe, told to them by a program host they already believe. This is human training and perspective. It is up to humans to change this.

Humans want extraterrestrial interference, which is what broad disclosure would become without permission.

Your ET cousins are trying to get humans used to the idea, by intentionally revealing their presence when cameras are known used, but human stubbornness is difficult to crack without interference.

Q: Are our extraterrestrial cousins concerned we would do harm to ourselves with certain technologies?

C: Yes and no. Humans already have the capability of doing immense harm to the human race with technology humans discovered and developed. New technology given to humans would be used for profit and power as the priority but do little if anything to improve human societies. This aspect can be avoided easily by distributing the technology widely, so that no one person or group could control it. This is another way to have across-the-board disclosure of alien extraterrestrial presence.
