

Viral Matters

19 January 2022

Do viruses matter? Are matters viral? The Topic of the Biennial threatens never to go away; to date one must ask, what other things are being given little or no attention, or just ignored while the world stares & glares at the shiny viral object shoved into our faces constantly, like a blue paper mask? Yes, I mean the coronavirus.

No shortage of talk and commentary exists which suggests turning off & tuning out news. A lot of what passes for news these days, strongly supports this idea; we're inundated with the subject. It seems to resemble the saying "I don't pay attention to politics" which does not stop public policy from reaching into that person's pocket. Ignore at one's peril.

Let's ask The Committee about the conspiracy talk, multiple injections, bad side effects and all the rest of the chatter & clatter surrounding the Biennial Topic.

A question about the flu came my way recently, whether a test for the flu or coronavirus was taken, or both. The questioner asked the test takers; the answer was yes. The second time the question was asked, the answer was different, only coronavirus. Consulting The Committee, they said:

"The test detected Covid19 viral remnants, overtaken by the flu. The obsession with testing is far overdone because the test is too sensitive; this is intentional. The presence of a virus does not mean an infestation of or infection from it, and other viruses can also enter the metabolism, which happens regularly. Generally, one prevails over the other, as the immune system spreads its effects to knock down both. They are knocked down in sequence, just as they propagate in sequence."

I never heard of a test for influenza, does it exist? Anybody with strong symptoms, as far as I remember, got treatment for that; there is no cure medication unless I really have been living in an information cave but don't know it.

Q: Esteemed Committee, before we get into the public chatter topic, have you said many people can get multiple viruses and suffer effects from both simultaneously?

C: Yes.

Q: I remember the winter of 2020-21, a year ago, when no discussion of the flu happened that I saw or heard. Since I can remember, people have been catching the flu, especially during colder months. Is this what happened?

C: Yes.

Q: Okay, let's get to the sensitivity of the exam. Does it also detect pieces of formerly viable viruses in a person who is not contagious?

C: Yes.

Q: If the exam is super-sensitive, it catches everybody. Doctors would say this is good, just in case.

C: No, because the incorrect assumption from the start has been, a positive test requires a person to stay away from other people, ignoring presence or absence of symptoms. The point of a sickness is, its symptoms and effects. If none exist, treatment is not generally necessary.

Q: All the talk about conspiracies must have some basis of truth. It cannot be all false, fake or hoaxed.

C: Correct.

Q: Who is conspiring what?

C: As we have explained, hidden controlling powers know human nature very well, but are slaves to their hunger for control. So few humans reach a place where orders and instructions issued are followed. This feedback affects the mind of the commander like a narcotic. The hidden powers carefully select for their ranks, specific people given to the effects of the narcotic. Such people have no need for material things they either do not already have or cannot get. So few humans reach this place, so few among you can know the feeling or sensation.

Through careful, judicious use of threats, lures, incentives and punishments plans can be planted, seeded and germinated. Many subjects of these powers appear to be leaders and decision makers, and many among them require little or no urging to follow the pack, to follow along with other apparent leaders. Addicted to popularity, its loss looks disastrous in their minds.

The plan almost unfolds on its own, once the right spots are poked and pressed. It works across human society the way acupuncture operates.

Q: A recent news blip said Israeli officials are now saying even four injections are insufficient. When does this end?

C: When a majority of people realize the end of injections will come when enough people refuse them.

Q: The idea that an injection will lessen symptoms even if catching the virus, is this true?

C: Yes, but not in most recipients. This is why; the human immune system will perform to a certain level, and these will vary considerably from person to person. The messenger RNA does not produce a better immune system response; the goal is to direct or control the immune system to launch a pre-emptive strike. This is not a stronger strike, just a timed strike. The immune system response is improved, meaning faster production of more antibodies and related cells, through diet and good physical conditioning.

The injection in some cases will create an increase in these pre-emptive anti-bodies. If enough are present when an intruder appears which the antibodies have been mapped to recognize, this will prevent or lessen sickness. The challenge and problem are, if no intruder arrives, the immune system stops producing the antibodies, without blueprinting an intruder for future, fast counterattack. Thus resistance fades then disappears, immunity is not gained. Repeated injections tend to lessen overall immune system response; it will not continue to create antibodies aimed at an intruder which has not appeared.

Q: In other words, resistance to the coronavirus is decreased overall from multiple injections?

C: Yes, in many recipients. The immune system does not cry wolf very well.

Q: The negative effects, including deaths, are caused by what?

C: Other ingredients in the injections working in conjunction with the developed RNA.

Q: Are these injections effective at any stage of the recipient exposure?

C: Yes, if the subject does become exposed to the virus shortly after the injection, after a week or two in most cases.

Q: What will happen then?

C: The normal immune system response and blueprinting.

Q: How long does human immunity from this coronavirus last?

C: Many years and even decades. We will say many people whose immune system knocked down the virus will be highly resistant for the remainder of their physical lives, if their immune system is not strained or compromised by other conditions.

Q: Would it be best for a person to receive the injection, then intentionally expose her/himself?

C: It would be effective, but we suggest exposure to the virus directly unless such person has a condition already known to reduce the immune system response.

Q: Things such as a cardiovascular condition, cancer, severely overweight and other things?

C: Yes.

Q: What would you recommend for such a person?

C As we have said many times, that person should limit exposure. Simply remain away from anyone with symptoms but most importantly ingest the now known vitamins and minerals and do what is possible to improve health. Things such as begin exercise, reduce consumption of drugs like alcohol and others and reduce inhalation of smoke. Several medications have shown excellent effectiveness if administered early, these drugs the subject of intense debate.

Q: Is there a conspiracy to reduce the human population?

C: Yes.

Q: Will proof ever be revealed?

C: No.

Q: How was it possible to create such panic across the world, when it was not done in 2008 or 2009 for the swine flu, or the SARS outbreak a few years after that?

C: In other moments, the desire was not present. The people capable of lighting the fire and fanning the conflagration, did not make the effort as was done in 2019.

Q: Obviously information overload is a factor.

C: Yes, and the media lust for ratings thus money fit the arrangement. As is often said, what bleeds, leads. Viewer- & readership increase for shocking or fearful news. The media outlets need no prompting to run with stories of looming problems.

From there, repetition takes effect. The flood of information drowns out competing voices which suggest panic is not right. Panic and disaster sell very well, much like thrills and entertainment.

Q: Is this pandemic and response part of The Shift?

C: Yes. The shift in energies is causing the response. The lust for control over human populations is not new, this would have happened many a time over the past several thousand years if the information technology were available. It is now, and is being used accordingly.

Q: What about the idea sinister Alien ETs are part of the problem?

C: They are not part of the pandemic, however have used the same incentives to attempt to coerce humans into providing what they would like. Communication is not a general violation of the prime directive not to interfere. The listener retains control over her/his reactions. No Alien ETs actively threaten humans, as they know the dangling tempting incentives is far more effective and long lasting.

The very few humans who have been subjected to this process, have in turn used it to exert control over human populations.

Q: Are there going to be significant deaths occurring over the next several years from the injections?

C: Yes, and these are already happening. The deaths are not attributed to the injections and in most cases cannot be. Physical conditions which result from heavy, long time cigarette smoking are many. The evidence of smoking is difficult to conceal, so the link can be established between the smoke inhalation and the eventual death from it, however it is difficult to link the many fatal conditions already occurring to the viral injections now being received around the world.

Q: The restrictions and public rejection of the unvaccinated, seems to be like a mass hypnosis. The effective social scoring seems horrible. It sounds like an attempt to create two groups to then paint one of them as bad.

C: Yes, this is true. Sadly predictable.

Q: Will changes to human societies forced by geophysical and other changes, such as supply chain problems now common around the world, wake people up?

C: Slowly. It is not easy to show a person s/he has been manipulated. Pride is a tall wall to scale.

Q: Thank you, esteemed Committee.

C: Our please as always, be well one and all.
